Description:

The modular curved bench is a piece of furniture with rounded contours that allows for the creation of compositions with organic forms. It enables the creation of semi-circular or enclosed configurations, encouraging interaction between users and naturally guiding the flow of movement within the space.

It forms part of a range of modular furniture designed for public spaces, characterised by great robustness and compositional flexibility. The forms are based on fluid lines and rounded geometric transitions, allowing for the creation of harmonious configurations that can be adapted to different functions and dimensions.

The collection is manufactured using rotational moulding with HDPE (high-density polyethylene) granules, ensuring a uniform material structure, high mechanical strength and a long service life even under conditions of intensive use.

It also offers resistance to UV rays, moisture, temperature fluctuations and impact, making the pieces suitable for both indoor and outdoor use.
